Sermon On the Mount ~ The Beatitudes

Blessed are the poor in spirit,
Blessed are they who mourn,
Blessed are the meek,
Blessed are they who hunger and thirst for righteousness,
Blessed are the merciful,
Blessed are the clean of heart,
Blessed are the peacemakers,
Blessed are they who are persecuted for the sake of righteousness,
Blessed are you when they insult you and persecute you and utter every kind of evil against you falsely because of me.

REJOICE AND BE GLAD,
FOR YOUR REWARD WILL BE GREAT IN HEAVEN."

From the Pastor's Pen

No one knows exactly when schools, as we know them, began. Probably the earliest form of education was that of elders passing on their knowledge and experience to younger folks. We do know that the Greek and Roman civilizations had centers of learning and valued education, at least for the higher social classes. More formal public schools were founded in the Middle Ages in Europe, though they were most for the more well-to-do. Many of the lower social classes were illiterate. By colonial times schools were more widespread. When settlers came to what would be the United States, many saw the need for public education. However, since early colonial America was largely Protestant, a Protestant theology was often a part of the curriculum. When more and more Catholic immigrants began to arrive, many of them felt the need for separate Catholic schools. So over the years the Catholic School system on all levels grew and thrived.

This week we celebrate Catholic Schools Week. We here at St. James Parish join Catholic schools across the nation to celebrate and affirm the value of Catholic education. Since 1955 our school has provided an excellent learning environment. The school mission statement reads: "The Saint James Catholic School Community, a ministry of the parish, empowers students to achieve their full academic and Christian potential, become prayerful, life-long learners and good stewards of God's gifts." Pope Francis has stated: "Catholic education is about working toward advancing the common good, touching hearts and changing attitudes."

Yes, a good chunk of our annual parish budget supports our St. James School. Some may question that expenditure, but it is an investment both for forming the students now and for the future. It is ministry, like the other ministries of the parish, so we ask your continued support. I know I also speak for Fr. Mike, our pastor, in recognizing and expressing appreciation to our administrators, teachers, staff, volunteers and parents for their continuing effort in promoting excellence and fostering Christian values by their example.

My prayers are with you each day.

Fr. Michael

Someone is Watching and Wondering

Last week I addressed sacramentals and noted that for me all of nature serves as a sacramental, that is a sign or a symbol that prepares me to receive grace. Today, as we get closer to Lent, my focus is on living a sacramental life.

The late theologian Fr. Richard McBrien in his book Catholicism cited Pope Paul VI's address before the second session of Vatican II, describing sacramentality as "a reality imbued with the hidden presence of God." McBrien further stated that the Catholic world has a sacramental perspective that "sees the divine in the human, the infinite in the finite, the spiritual in the material, the transcendent in the immanent, the eternal in the historical. For Catholicism, therefore, all reality is sacred." Let me say, I have studied and quoted Fr. McBrien's book on numerous occasions and once again I find his words enlightening and uplifting. As I reread these words, however, reflecting on my own life, I wondered if I actually live a sacramental life. I continue to receive the Sacraments of the Church and as previously mentioned believe that nature in all its diversity and splendor serves as a sacramental for me. My inner question remained: "Do I see the divine in all humans, the infinite in the finite, the spiritual in the material world, the transcendent in what exists around me, the eternal within the historical?" Honestly I fall short in one or two of these.

I experience difficulty in finding the divine in mean, cruel people; likewise I question how to find the spiritual in most material things in my world; and the eternal within our fractionized historical record. Conversely, I think I score higher finding the infinite in what appears to be a finite world (just consider the images and knowledge coming to us from the James Web space telescope) and the transcendent in what is immanent or already exiting. For me, every time I experience new life I experience transcendence, something above or beyond my merely physical and human understanding.

As we approach the season of Lent in just a few weeks I am setting a goal to work towards a deeper, richer, fulfilling sacramental life; "a reality imbued with the hidden presence of God." I try to think of positive actions rather than negative actions for my Lenten journey. Join with me?

Your Sister in Christ, Sandy Gagnon
